COURSE DESCRIPTION

Course Title: Social Skills III
Course Number: 00635
Course Prerequisites: Social Skills I, Social Skills II

Course Description: Instruction in Social Skills has been shown to positively influence adolescents. Benefit has also occurred for student with disabilities including learning disabilities and those with emotional and behavioral disorders. Additional evidence supports social skills instruction for individuals with lower incidence disabilities such as traumatic brain injury, schizophrenia and those on the Autism Spectrum. Social Skills instruction results in a more positive school climate and more time for teachers to spend on academic instruction instead of discipline, leading to a more rewarding learning and teaching experience.

Skill streaming is an evidence-based strategy designed to systematically teach social skills to address the needs of students who display aggression, immaturities, withdrawal, or other problem behaviors. The Skill streaming process focuses on four principles of learning. These learning procedures— modeling, role playing, performance feedback, and generalization training— have been used to teach a variety of behaviors, from academic competencies of sports, daily living skills, and vocational skills. Instruction also includes use of video modeling to cover topics and demonstrate appropriate social skills.

This course will continue instruction using a systematic approach, with emphasis on generalization of skills to within a social environments and during practical, real world experiences, those skills student have obtained from participation in Social Skills I & II.
